

XM, or any satellite radio forum , should be allowed to provide any level of programming it wants assuming it is not in viloation of any Federal law. Having Congress introduce any legislation that places restrictions on anything with respect to content, in favor of exisitng radio and television forums, smacks of censorship and playing favorites with the huge entertainment outlets. Radio and television have become virtual wastelands and we should allow something new to push the existing outlets into productive, useful channels instead of Reality TV and American Idol garbage generators.
